

Let the Music Play On

Seventy-seven-year-old Harry Schmoll is a classically trained pianist. He loves playing the piano for his own enjoyment, for his wife Rita, intimate groups of friends, larger groups in his community, and even passengers on cruise ships. He has been playing show tunes, songs made popular by the Rat Pack, and classical music for more than half his life.

Fifteen years ago, the music almost stopped.

At the time, Harry was a practicing attorney and full Professor of Business Law at Burlington County College. During a routine physical exam, Harry's family doctor detected a heart abnormality, and immediately referred Harry to a local cardiologist. Based on test results, Harry was referred to Deborah for a cardiac catheterization. Deborah's interventional cardiologists discovered a major blockage in Harry's main artery. He was immediately scheduled for bypass surgery the very next morning. Dr. Lynn B. McGrath performed the successful surgery that saved Harry's life.

Grateful for life fifteen years later, Harry continues to show his gratitude by supporting Deborah and sharing his love of music with family and friends.

"I will forever be thankful to Dr. McGrath and Deborah for their efforts in saving my life. Since my surgery, I have been able to continue doing everything I enjoy - teaching at BCC, practicing law, reaching 45 years as a member of the Bar Association which included a term as a municipal court judge, making the most of retirement, taking additional cruises with my wife Rita, and, of course, playing the piano. So every year since my surgery, I have supported Deborah with annual donations."

It is also important to Harry and Rita that Deborah will be here for others in the future, just like Deborah was here for him. So, they started fulfilling this personal mission by donating shares of stock to Deborah, which purchased a Charitable Gift Annuity. They also officially enrolled in the Foundation's Heritage Circle, a society for individuals who inform us that the Deborah Foundation is included in their Wills and Estate Plans. As a member of our Heritage Circle and a Charitable Gift Annuitant, Harry and Rita are proud to know that their names are now included on Deborah's Donor Wall of Honor, but more importantly, they are proud to know that years from now, lives will be saved because of their thoughtful gifts.

The Schmolls are grateful to Deborah. The staff, leadership and our patients are grateful to Harry and Rita, and wish them many more years of beautiful music together!
